FGCU Office of Graduate Studies’ Website Redesign

- This artifact was developed in the Spring 2010 semester during my internship with E-Learning, Web, & Publications department under supervision of the director, Dave Jaeger.

- My role in the website redesign was to lead the project by learning the administration side of Red Dot, our web-editing software, to create the new website.

- This project addresses the following Florida Educational Leadership Standards and the substandards that apply: Standard 1: Vision & Standard 7: Technology

- I learned how to use the administration side of Red Dot to create a website within FGCU’s template from scratch. I learned how to build an effective website that relays our vision and message in a user-friendly format. It was neat to work with the back end of the website design and create elements such as rotating images. I have also learned we need to be patient with technology and that there is a learning curve to work through to become comfortable using it.

www.fgcu.edu/graduate