Herald Court Theatre Kids is a multi-year theatre education program for grades 2-12. The program runs for three semesters per season, fall, winter, and spring. Each semester has eight weeks for a total of 24 contact hours per season. The cost of the program is $120 per 8 week semester or $360 for the season. A $25 non-refundable registration fee for class materials and administration is a onetime payment per semester or for the season.

Payment in advance is preferred. Again, parents may opt to pay for simply one semester or for the entire season. Payment for subsequent semesters must be made two weeks in advance in order to secure the student's spot in the class in fairness to those on our wait list. Class size is limited to a minimum of 6 and a maximum of 12 and must balance between boys and girls.

Parental involvement is integral to the success of the program. Once a semester, Herald Court Theatre Kids Director and Instructors hold a Round Table Discussion for parents so parents may remain informed and involved.

Herald Court Theatre Kids works with the Performing Arts Development Cooperative (PADC) to produce main-stage performances. PADC is an association of parents that work together to make live performance possible for children. All families that participate in the main-stage production become members of the cooperative, and agree to help raise production costs and take on one task on the PADC Production Wheel.
